Leave Policy

Enterprise Human Resources Policy

Document ID	HR-POL-002
Version	3.0
Owner	Human Resources
Review Cycle	Annual

Key Facts

Item	Details
Planned leave notice	Normally at least 3 working days
Submission system	Leave management system
Approval	Manager approval required
Unexpected leave	Notify reporting manager promptly
Work handover	Required for important planned tasks
Business requirements	May affect approval or timing

1. Purpose

This policy defines the general process for requesting, approving, and managing employee leave. It is intended to provide a consistent process while allowing managers to consider project schedules and business requirements.

2. Leave Request Process

Employees should submit planned leave through the company's leave management system. The request should contain the dates of absence and any information required by the system.

Planned leave should normally be requested at least three working days in advance. Employees should avoid making travel or other irreversible commitments until the leave request has been approved.

3. Manager Approval

Leave requests are subject to manager approval. Submission of a request does not by itself constitute approval.

Managers consider team availability, project deadlines, business commitments, and previously approved leave when reviewing requests. Where possible, managers should communicate decisions promptly.

4. Unexpected Leave

For illness or an unexpected personal emergency, the employee should notify the reporting manager as soon as reasonably possible.

Unexpected absence should be communicated through the normal team communication channel or another approved method when the employee cannot access the leave management system immediately.

5. Work Handover

Before planned leave, employees should identify important tasks, deadlines, pending decisions, and relevant contacts. Time-sensitive work should be handed over to an appropriate team member.

The handover should contain enough information for the team to continue critical work without unnecessary delays.

6. Business Requirements

Managers may decline, reschedule, or request an alternative period for planned leave when critical project deadlines, client commitments, staffing constraints, or other business requirements make the requested dates impractical.

Employees and managers should discuss alternative dates when a requested period cannot be accommodated.

7. Returning From Leave

Employees should resume work according to their approved schedule. For extended absence, the employee should review important updates and outstanding tasks with the appropriate team members.

Any change to the approved leave period should be communicated to the reporting manager and recorded through the approved process.

8. Responsibilities

Employees are responsible for submitting accurate requests, obtaining approval, completing appropriate handovers, and communicating unexpected absence.

Managers are responsible for reviewing requests consistently and balancing employee leave with operational and project requirements. Human Resources provides guidance when policy interpretation is required.

Document note: This document is prepared as controlled demonstration data for the Enterprise Knowledge Assistant. Only requirements explicitly stated in this document should be treated as authoritative for retrieval-based answers.