1. Purpose

This policy defines the requirements and operating guidelines for employees working remotely. It supports flexible working while maintaining availability, productivity, information security, and collaboration.

2. Eligibility and Frequency

Eligible employees may work remotely up to three days per week, subject to team requirements and reporting-manager approval.

Remote work availability may vary by role. Client commitments, project activities, team events, training, or other business requirements may require physical attendance.

3. Request and Approval

Employees must submit a remote-work request through the company's internal attendance system before the start of the remote working day.

Employees should obtain manager approval before treating a working day as an approved remote day. Repeated or exceptional remote-work arrangements may require additional approval.

4. Working Hours and Availability

Employees working remotely must remain available during their assigned working hours and attend scheduled meetings.

Employees are expected to maintain reliable internet connectivity and appropriate access to the communication and collaboration systems required for their role.

5. Office Attendance

Remote work is not permitted when an employee is required to attend an important client meeting, team event, mandatory training, or other activity requiring physical presence.

Managers may ask employees to work from the office when business requirements, deadlines, collaboration needs, or client commitments make office attendance necessary.

6. Information Security

Confidential information must be accessed only through approved systems and secure connections. Employees must protect company documents and screens from unauthorized viewing.

Company credentials must not be shared with other people. Employees must follow the Information Security Policy when working outside the office.

7. Work Environment

Employees should maintain a suitable workspace that allows them to perform their assigned responsibilities and participate in meetings without unnecessary disruption.

Employees should protect company equipment from loss, theft, unauthorized access, and damage.

8. Responsibilities

Employees are responsible for requesting approval, remaining available, protecting company information, and completing assigned work.

Managers are responsible for applying the policy consistently and ensuring that remote work does not negatively affect team delivery, customer commitments, or security.
